

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
EASTERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

ANDREINA GUZMAN, an individual, Plaintiff,
v.
GRAHAM PACKAGING CO., L.P., et al.,
Defendants.

No. 2:24-cv-00498-TLN-AC

ORDER

This matter is before the Court on Plaintiff Andreina Guzman’s (“Plaintiff”) Motion to Remand. (ECF No. 8.) Defendants Graham Packaging Co, LP, Graham Packaging Pet Technologies, Inc., (collectively “Graham Defendants”), and Aman Singh, (“Singh”) (together with Graham Defendants, “Defendants”) filed an opposition. (ECF No. 10.) Plaintiff filed a reply. (ECF No. 13.)

Also before the Court is Defendants’ Motion to Dismiss. (ECF No. 9.) Plaintiff filed an opposition. (ECF No. 11.) Defendants filed a reply. (ECF No. 14.)

For the reasons set forth below, the Court DENIES Plaintiff’s Motion to Remand and GRANTS in part and DENIES in part Defendants’ Motion to Dismiss.

1 I. FACTUAL AND PROCEDURAL BACKGROUND¹

2 This case concerns alleged employment discrimination based on pregnancy. Defendants 3 hired Plaintiff as an “Administrative Specialist III” on or about July 12, 2021, where Singh was 4 the plant controller and managing agent for Graham Defendants. (ECF No. 1 at 22–23.)

5 In August 2022, Plaintiff informed Singh and Defendants’ human resources supervisor, 6 Marcos Sandoval (“Sandoval”), that she was pregnant and would be taking maternity leave. (Id.
7 at 23.) Plaintiff returned to work on July 10, 2023, after giving birth a few months prior but was 8 “shocked to find a different employee sitting at her desk and performing her same job duties.”
9 (Id. at 24.) Two weeks later, Plaintiff attended a meeting wherein her supervisors — Aron Wark 10 (“Wark”) and Alfonzo Mora (“Mora”) — asked her how she felt about a position change before 11 assigning Plaintiff to a new facility. (Id.)

12 Plaintiff arrived at her new facility on July 26, 2023, under the impression that she was to 13 begin her normal job duties and responsibilities (i.e., the duties she performed prior to her 14 maternity leave). (Id.) However, that was not the case. Instead, Plaintiff alleges she began 15 training a new hire employee, Maria Gudino (“Gudino”), to perform her job duties, and after a 16 while, Singh requested Gudino perform them instead of Plaintiff. (Id. at 24–25.) About a week 17 later, Wark and Sandoval informed Plaintiff that there was a good possibility her position would 18 be eliminated but that she could transition to become a quality lead — a position in which 19 Plaintiff had no experience and little interest. (Id. at 25.)

20 On August 24, 2023, Defendants suddenly terminated Wark’s employment. (Id.) Plaintiff 21 called Wark to wish him farewell, and Wark warned Plaintiff that she may be next to be let go.
22 (Id.) Specifically, Wark informed Plaintiff that Singh expressly communicated to him and upper 23 management that Plaintiff was about to be terminated because she “took time off work due to her 24 pregnancy and [it was Singh’s] belief that Plaintiff would have additional children in the future 25 and again request further time off work.” (Id.)

26 ///

27

28 ¹ The following allegations are taken from Plaintiff’s Complaint. (ECF No. 1 at 21–37.)

1 About two weeks later, Plaintiff noticed her paystub included a payout for vacation time
2 she had accrued. (Id.) Plaintiff inquired about her paycheck, thinking she had been overpaid, 3 only to be terminated by Singh and Sandoval on September 8, 2023. (Id.) Plaintiff believes 4 Defendants' decision to terminate her was motivated in whole or in part by her pregnancy and 5 subsequent maternity leave and the possibility that she may again become pregnant and seek 6 maternity leave in the future. (Id. at 25–26.)

7 Plaintiff commenced this lawsuit against Defendants in the Stanislaus County Superior 8 Court on January 18, 2024, alleging eight causes of action: (1) retaliation in violation of the 9 California Fair Employment and Housing Act (“FEHA”) (Cal. Gov’t Code § 12900 et seq.); (2) 10 failure to prevent discrimination in violation of FEHA; (3) retaliation in violation of the Moore-11 Brown-Roberti Family Rights Act (“FRA”) (Cal. Gov’t. Code § 12945.1 et seq.); (4) retaliation in 12 violation of the Family and Medical Leave Act (“FMLA”) (29 U.S.C. § 2601 et seq.); (5)
13 pregnancy/sex discrimination in violation of FEHA; (6) violation of California Government Code 14 § 12945 (§ 12945); (7) wrongful termination in violation of California public policy; and (8) 15 violation of California’s unfair competition laws (“UCL”) (Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et 16 seq.) (ECF No. 1 at 26–36.)

17 Defendants removed the action to this Court on February 19, 2024, based on diversity and 18 federal question jurisdiction. (ECF No. 2.) Plaintiff filed the instant motion to remand on 19 February 22, 2024, and Defendants filed the instant motion to dismiss the next day. (ECF Nos. 8, 20 9.) Both motions are fully briefed. (ECF Nos. 10–11, 13–14.)

21 II. MOTION TO REMAND

22 A. Standard of Law

23 “[A]ny civil action brought in a State court of which the district courts of the United 24 States have original jurisdiction, may be removed by ... defendants, to the district court of the 25 United States for the district and division embracing the place where such action is pending.” 28 26 U.S.C. § 1441(a). District courts have original jurisdiction over all civil actions arising under 27 federal law, or between citizens of different states in which the amount in controversy exceeds 28 $75,000. 28 U.S.C. §§ 1331, 1332. District courts also have supplemental jurisdiction “over all

1 other claims that are so related to claims in the action within such original jurisdiction, such that 2 they form part of the same case or controversy.” 28 U.S.C. § 1337(a).

3 Removal is proper only when the state-court action could have originally been filed in federal 4 court. Caterpillar Inc. v. Williams, 482 U.S. 386, 392 (1987). Courts “strictly construe the removal 5 statute against removal jurisdiction,” and “the defendant always has the burden of establishing 6 that removal is proper.” Gaus v. Miles, Inc., 980 F.2d 564, 566 (9th Cir. 1992) (per curiam).
7 Furthermore, “[i]f the district court at any time determines that it lacks subject matter jurisdiction 8 over the removed action, it must remedy the improvident grant of removal by remanding the 9 action to state court.” California ex rel. Lockyer v. Dynegy, Inc., 375 F.3d 831, 838, as amended, 10 387 F.3d 966 (9th Cir. 2004).

11 B. Analysis

12 In moving to remand, Plaintiff argues: (1) the Court does not have original diversity 13 jurisdiction because Defendant is a California resident, there is no fraudulent joinder, and the 14 amount in controversy has not been established; and (2) despite the existence of federal question 15 jurisdiction, the Court should decline to exercise supplemental jurisdiction over the state-law 16 claims because they substantially predominate over the federal claims. (ECF No. 8 at 9–15.)

17 In opposition, Defendants contend the Court should deny Plaintiff’s motion for remand 18 because: (1) Plaintiff admits federal question jurisdiction exists; (2) Plaintiff’s state-law claims 19 are based on the same case or controversy as her federal claim; (3) Plaintiff’s state-law claims do 20 not predominate when they are based on the same facts, evidence, and witnesses; (4) if the Court 21 determined Plaintiff’s state-law claims predominate, the Court’s jurisdiction would be restored by 22 severing the state-law claims from this action; and (5) complete diversity exists between the 23 parties and the amount in controversy requirement has been met. (ECF No. 10 at 7–17.)

24 The Court finds that it has jurisdiction over this action and thus removal was proper. As 25 already discussed, removal is proper when the state-court action could have originally been filed 26 in federal court. Caterpillar Inc., 482 U.S. at 392. Complaints containing a federal cause of 27 action could have originally been filed in federal court. 28 U.S.C. § 1331. Plaintiff concedes — 28 nor could she reasonably argue otherwise — that her fourth cause of action for retaliation in

1 violation of the FMLA (29 U.S.C. § 2601 et seq.) is a federal cause of action that confers upon 2 the Court federal question jurisdiction. (See ECF No. 8 at 12–15.) Nevertheless, Plaintiff argues 3 the Court should decline to exercise supplemental jurisdiction over her state-law claims. (Id.) 4 However, the propriety of exercising supplemental jurisdiction over Plaintiff’s state-law claims is 5 irrelevant to the threshold question of whether removal was proper. All Defendants need to show 6 is that removal was proper because the Court has diversity or federal question jurisdiction. Gaus, 7 980 F.2d at 566. Defendants, through their own pleadings and Plaintiff’s concession, have 8 demonstrated the latter.

9 Accordingly, the Court DENIES Plaintiff’s motion to remand.²

10 III. MOTION TO DISMISS

11 A. Standard of Law

12 A motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted under 13 Federal Rule of Civil Procedure (“Rule”) 12(b)(6) tests the legal sufficiency of a complaint.
14 Navarro v. Block, 250 F.3d 729, 732 (9th Cir. 2001). Rule 8(a) requires that a pleading contain 15 “a short and plain statement of the claim showing that the pleader is entitled to relief.” Fed. R.
16 Civ. P. 8(a); see also Ashcroft v. Iqbal, 556 U.S. 662, 677–78 (2009). Under notice pleading in 17 federal court, the complaint must “give the defendant fair notice of what the . . . claim is and the 18 grounds upon which it rests.” Bell Atlantic v. Twombly, 550 U.S. 544, 555 (2007) (internal 19 citation and quotations omitted). “This simplified notice pleading standard relies on liberal 20 discovery rules and summary judgment motions to define disputed facts and issues and to dispose 21 of unmeritorious claims.” Swierkiewicz v. Sorema N.A., 534 U.S. 506, 512 (2002).

22 On a motion to dismiss, the factual allegations of the complaint must be accepted as true.
23 Cruz v. Beto, 405 U.S. 319, 322 (1972). A court must give the plaintiff the benefit of every 24 reasonable inference to be drawn from the “well-pleaded” allegations of the complaint. Retail Clerks Int’l Ass’n v. Schermerhorn, 373 U.S. 746, 753 n.6 (1963). A plaintiff need not allege 25 “‘specific facts’ beyond those necessary to state his claim and the grounds showing entitlement to

26
27 ² Because the Court finds federal question jurisdiction exists, the Court declines to address 28 the parties’ arguments related to diversity jurisdiction.

1 relief.” Twombly, 550 U.S. at 570 (internal citation omitted).

2 Nevertheless, a court “need not assume the truth of legal conclusions cast in the form of 3 factual allegations.” U.S. ex rel. Chunie v. Ringrose, 788 F.2d 638, 643 n.2 (9th Cir. 1986).
4 While Rule 8(a) does not require detailed factual allegations, “it demands more than an 5 unadorned, the defendant-unlawfully-harmed-me accusation.” Iqbal, 556 U.S. at 678. A 6 pleading is insufficient if it offers mere “labels and conclusions” or “a formulaic recitation of the 7 elements of a cause of action.” Twombly, 550 U.S. at 555; see also Iqbal, 556 U.S. at 678
8 (“Threadbare recitals of the elements of a cause of action, supported by mere conclusory 9 statements, do not suffice.”). Thus, “[c]onclusory allegations of law and unwarranted inferences 10 are insufficient to defeat a motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim.” Adams v. Johnson, 355, 11 F.3d 1179, 1183 (9th Cir. 2004) (citations omitted). Moreover, it is inappropriate to assume the 12 plaintiff “can prove facts that it has not alleged or that the defendants have violated the . . . laws 13 in ways that have not been alleged.” Associated Gen. Contractors of Cal., Inc. v. Cal. State 14 Council of Carpenters, 459 U.S. 519, 526 (1983).

15 Ultimately, a court may not dismiss a complaint in which the plaintiff has alleged “enough 16 facts to state a claim to relief that is plausible on its face.” Twombly, 550 U.S. at 570. “A claim 17 has facial plausibility when the plaintiff pleads factual content that allows the court to draw the 18 reasonable inference that the defendant is liable for the misconduct alleged.” Iqbal, 556 U.S. at 19 680. While the plausibility requirement is not akin to a probability requirement, it demands more 20 than “a sheer possibility that a defendant has acted unlawfully.” Id. at 678. This plausibility 21 inquiry is “a context-specific task that requires the reviewing court to draw on its judicial 22 experience and common sense.” Id. at 679. Thus, only where a plaintiff fails to “nudge [his or 23 her] claims . . . across the line from conceivable to plausible[,]” is the complaint properly 24 dismissed. Id. at 680 (internal quotations omitted).

25 In ruling on a motion to dismiss, a court may consider only the complaint, any exhibits 26 thereto, and matters which may be judicially noticed pursuant to Federal Rule of Evidence 201.
27 See Mir v. Little Co. of Mary Hosp., 844 F.2d 646, 649 (9th Cir. 1988); Isuzu Motors Ltd. v.
28 Consumers Union of U.S., Inc., 12 F. Supp. 2d 1035, 1042 (C.D. Cal. 1998); see also Daniels-

1 Hall v. Nat'l Educ. Ass'n, 629 F.3d 992, 998 (9th Cir. 2010) (the court need not accept as true 2 allegations that contradict matters properly subject to judicial notice).

3 If a complaint fails to state a plausible claim, “[a] district court should grant leave to 4 amend even if no request to amend the pleading was made, unless it determines that the pleading 5 could not possibly be cured by the allegation of other facts.” Lopez v. Smith, 203 F.3d 1122, 6 1130 (9th Cir. 2000) (en banc) (quoting Doe v. United States, 58 F.3d 494, 497 (9th Cir. 1995)); 7 see also Gardner v. Martino, 563 F.3d 981, 990 (9th Cir. 2009) (finding no abuse of discretion in 8 denying leave to amend when amendment would be futile). Although a district court should 9 freely give leave to amend when justice so requires under Rule 15(a)(2), “the court’s discretion to 10 deny such leave is ‘particularly broad’ where the plaintiff has previously amended its 11 complaint[.]” Ecological Rights Found. v. Pac. Gas & Elec. Co., 713 F.3d 502, 520 (9th Cir.
12 2013) (quoting Miller v. Yokohama Tire Corp., 358 F.3d 616, 622 (9th Cir. 2004)).

13 B. Analysis

14 Defendants move to dismiss Plaintiff’s: (1) FRA claim against Singh; (2) § 12945 claim 15 against Defendants; (3) UCL claim against Defendants; and (4) request for punitive damages.
16 (ECF No. 9-1 at 8–12.) The Court will address each of these claims and the request for punitive 17 damages in turn.

18 1. FRA Claim

19 Plaintiff’s third cause of action is a claim for retaliation in violation of the FRA against 20 Defendants. (ECF No. 1 at 28–30). Plaintiff alleges she was entitled to take maternity leave 21 under the FRA but was discriminated against and retaliated against because she exercised that 22 right. (Id.)

23 Defendants contend Plaintiff’s FRA claim must be dismissed against Singh because there 24 can be no liability against individuals who do not themselves qualify as employers under the 25 FRA. (ECF No. 9-1 at 8–9.) Plaintiff concedes that Singh should be dismissed from her FRA
26 claim. (ECF No. 11 at 7.)

27 Accordingly, the Court DISMISSES Plaintiff’s FRA claim against Singh without leave to 28 amend.

1 2. § 12945 Claim

2 Plaintiff's sixth cause of action against Graham Defendants alleges a violation of § 12945.
3 (ECF No. 1 at 86–88.) Specifically, Plaintiff avers Defendants terminated her employment 4 substantially based on her decision to take maternity leave and discriminated against her because 5 of her pregnancy and related medical conditions by refusing to grant her time off work. (ECF No.
6 1 at 32–34.)

7 “Pregnancy discrimination is an unlawful employment practice under provisions of the 8 FEHA that prohibit discrimination on the basis of sex, disability, and pregnancy-related 9 conditions.” Lopez v. La Casa De Las Madres, 89 Cal. App. 5th 365, 378 (2023).
10 “Discrimination based on the fact that a person is pregnant, has given birth, is breastfeeding, or 11 has a related medical condition is a form of sex discrimination, prohibited by section 12940(a).”
12 Id. (citations omitted).

13 Section 12945 addresses two distinct protections available to 14 employees with conditions relating to pregnancy. First, employees 15 disabled by such a condition are entitled to pregnancy-disability 16 leave. Specifically, it is unlawful for an employer to refuse to allow 17 an employee disabled by a condition related to pregnancy to take a 18 leave of absence for a reasonable period, not to exceed four months.
19 (§ 12945(a)(1).) And during the disability leave period, it is 20 unlawful for the employer to refuse to maintain insurance coverage 21 for the employee. (§ 12945(a)(2).)

22 Second, section 12945 entitles an employee to accommodation of a 23 condition relating to pregnancy in specified situations. It is 24 unlawful for an employer to refuse to provide a reasonable 25 accommodation for a condition related to pregnancy, whether or not 26 that condition amounts to a disability, if such accommodation is 27 requested by the employee with the advice of the employee’s health 28 care provider. (§ 12945(a)(2)(A).) It is also an unlawful employment practice to refuse to accommodate a request temporarily to transfer a pregnant employee to a less strenuous position if the employer has a policy of making such transfers for temporarily disabled employees, or if the temporary transfer is requested with the advice of the employee’s physician and such a “transfer can be reasonably accommodated.” (§ 12945(a)(3)(B)–

29 Lopez, 89 Cal. App. 5th at 378–79.

1 Defendants contend Plaintiff's § 12945 claim should be dismissed because the "Complaint
2 does not contain any factual allegations to plausibly suggest Plaintiff was disabled by pregnancy, 3 childbirth, or a related medical condition." (ECF No. 9-1 at 9.) In opposition, Plaintiff argues the 4 "Complaint sufficiently pleads that she gave birth via cesarean section, and therefore suffered 5 from disabilities related to her pregnancy and/or childbirth that limited Plaintiff's major life 6 activities." (ECF No. 11 at 8.)

7 The Court agrees with Defendants and finds Plaintiff has failed to state a claim for 8 pregnancy discrimination under § 12945. Plaintiff does not allege Defendants denied her right to 9 take pregnancy-disability leave — to the contrary, Plaintiff admits she took maternity leave (ECF 10 No. 1 at 23–24).³ Nor does Plaintiff allege Defendants denied her a reasonable accommodation 11 for a condition related to pregnancy. Instead, Plaintiff simply alleges she took maternity leave, 12 gave birth via Cesarean section, and then Defendants retaliated against her for taking maternity 13 leave. (ECF No. 1 at 33–34.) However, Plaintiff fails to demonstrate such activity is protected 14 under § 12945.

15 Accordingly, the Court DISMISSES Plaintiff's § 12945 claim with leave to amend. Any 16 amended claim must allege Plaintiff was denied the protections available to employees with 17 conditions relating to pregnancy under § 12945.

18 3. UCL Claim

19 Plaintiff's eighth cause of action is a UCL claim against Graham Defendants. (ECF No. 1 20 at 35–36.) Plaintiff alleges Defendants' discrimination and retaliation based on sex/pregnancy 21 constitutes false, unfair, fraudulent, and deceptive business practices under the UCL. (Id.) 22 Plaintiff seeks to enjoin Defendants' purported unlawful conduct under the UCL and "restore to 23 Plaintiff her wrongfully-withheld compensation . . ." (Id. at 35.)

24 "Business and Professions Code section 17200 et seq. prohibits unfair competition, 25 including unlawful, unfair, and fraudulent business acts. The UCL covers a wide range of 26 ³ In her sixth cause of action, Plaintiff does allege that "by refusing to grant her time off 27 work, Defendants interfered with [her] right to take PDL leave." (ECF No. 1 at 33.) However, 28 this allegation is conclusory and overwhelmingly contradicted by Plaintiff's more detailed allegations elsewhere in the Complaint.

1 conduct.” Korea Supply Co. v. Lockheed Martin Corp., 29 Cal. 4th 1134, 1143 (2003) (footnote
 2 omitted). “While the scope of conduct covered by the UCL is broad, its remedies are limited.”
 3 Id. (citation omitted). “A UCL action is equitable in nature; damages cannot be recovered.” Id.
 4 (citation omitted). “Prevailing plaintiffs are generally limited to injunctive relief and restitution.”
 5 Cel-Tech Commc’ns, Inc. v. Los Angeles Cellular Tel. Co., 20 Cal. 4th 163, 179 (1999) (citations 6 omitted). But, “[r]egardless of whether California authorizes its courts to award equitable [relief]
 7 under the UCL … when a plain, adequate, and complete remedy exists at law, … federal courts 8 [must] rely on federal equitable principles before allowing equitable [relief] in such 9 circumstances.” Sonner v. Premier Nutrition Corp., 971 F.3d 834, 845 (9th Cir. 2020). Under 10 traditional federal equitable principles, a party must demonstrate, among other things, an 11 inadequate remedy at law before obtaining equitable relief. See, e.g., Beacon Theatres, Inc. v.
 12 Westover, 359 U.S. 500, 506 (1959) (“The basis of injunctive relief in the federal courts has 13 always been irreparable harm and inadequacy of legal remedies.”).

14 Defendants contend Plaintiff’s UCL claim should be dismissed because Plaintiff has an 15 adequate remedy at law and because Plaintiff lacks standing to pursue injunctive relief against her 16 former employer. (ECF No. 9-1 at 9–10.) Plaintiff does not specifically address Defendants’ 17 arguments in her opposition motion. Instead, Plaintiff argues her UCL claim is “properly pled 18 and viable” because it is predicated on Defendants’ discrimination and retaliation based on 19 sex/pregnancy, and injunctive relief is supported by California precedent. (ECF No. 11 at 13.)

20 The Court agrees with Defendants and finds Plaintiff has failed to state a claim under the 21 UCL. Plaintiff relies heavily on two California cases — Vaughn v. Tesla, Inc., 87 Cal. App. 5th 22 208 (2023), reh’g denied (Jan. 20, 2023), review denied (Apr. 12, 2023) and McGill v. Citibank, 23 N.A., 2 Cal. 5th 945 (2017) — for the proposition that she may proceed on her UCL claim. (See 24 ECF No. 11 at 12–13.) However, Plaintiff’s reliance is misplaced. While California courts may 25 award equitable relief on a UCL claim notwithstanding a plaintiff’s adequate remedy at law, 26 federal courts may not. Sonner, 971 F.3d at 845.⁴ To obtain equitable relief here, Plaintiff must 27 ⁴ The Court notes the Ninth Circuit’s ruling in Sonner was limited to federal courts sitting 28 in diversity jurisdiction. See Sonner v. Premier Nutrition Corp., 49 F.4th 1300, 1302 (9th Cir.

1 demonstrate she has no adequate remedy at law. Id. Plaintiff's Complaint is not just devoid of 2 such allegations, the Complaint expressly seeks compensatory, general, special, exemplary, and 3 punitive damages (i.e., remedies at law). (See ECF No. 1 at 36–37.) Thus, Plaintiff has failed to 4 demonstrate she has an inadequate remedy at law and therefore may not proceed on her equitable 5 claim in federal court. Sonner, 971 F.3d at 845. But the inquiry does not stop here.

6 Defendants argue the Court should dismiss Plaintiff's UCL claim without leave to amend 7 because she is no longer employed by Defendants and thus lacks standing to seek injunctive 8 relief. (ECF No. 9-1 at 10–11.) To support their argument, Defendants cite Walsh v. Nevada
9 Dep't of Hum. Res., 471 F.3d 1033 (9th Cir. 2006) and Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. Dukes, 564 U.S.
10 338 (2011). (Id.)

11 In both Walsh and Wal-Mart Stores, Inc., the plaintiffs sought injunctive relief related to 12 their former employer's allegedly discriminatory employment practices. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc., 13 564 U.S. at 364–65; Walsh, 471 F.3d at 1036–37. The Supreme Court — albeit in dicta 14 referencing the lower court's decision to certify a class — and the Ninth Circuit noted the 15 plaintiffs lacked standing to seek such relief because they were no longer employed by the 16 defendants and did not stand to benefit from an injunction prohibiting or mandating certain 17 employment practices. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc., 564 U.S. at 364–65; Walsh, 471 F.3d at 1036–37.
18 As a result, the plaintiffs failed to satisfy the redressability requirement for standing to bring a 19 particular claim. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc., 564 U.S. at 364–65; Walsh, 471 F.3d at 1036–37.

20 In the instant case, Plaintiff also seeks “preliminary and permanent injunctions pursuant to 21 [California] Business & Professions Code § 17203, enjoining and restraining Defendants from 22 continuing the unlawful and unfair business practices … and requiring the establishment of 23 2022) (“We held that federal courts sitting in diversity must apply federal equitable principles to 24 claims for equitable restitution brought under California law and that, under such principles, 25 dismissal was appropriate because Sonner could not show that she lacked an adequate remedy at 26 law.”). Although this matter is before the Court on federal question jurisdiction, the Court sees 27 no reason to depart from the Ninth Circuit’s analysis and conclusions of law where the Court is 28 exercising supplemental jurisdiction over state-law claims. Application of the Sonner holding is particularly appropriate where, as here, Plaintiff does not directly respond to Defendants’ arguments that Sonner controls.

1 appropriate and effective means to prevent future violations . . .” (ECF No. 1 at 37.) Like the 2 plaintiffs in Walsh and Wal-Mart Stores, Inc., Plaintiff does not stand to benefit from any changes 3 in Defendants’ employment practices. Thus, Plaintiff lacks standing to assert her UCL claim in 4 this Court, and any amendment would be futile.

5 Accordingly, the Court DISMISSES Plaintiff’s UCL claim without leave to amend. See 6 Theme Promotions, Inc. v. News Am. Mktg. FSI, 546 F.3d 991, 1010 (9th Cir. 2008) (citation 7 omitted) (“[L]eave to amend will not be granted where an amendment would be futile.”).

8 4. Punitive Damages

9 Finally, Defendants move to dismiss Plaintiff’s request for punitive damages. (ECF No.
10 9-1 at 11–12.) However, “a motion to dismiss is not the proper vehicle to challenge a claim of 11 damages.” Trull v. City of Lodi, No. 2:23-cv-01177-TLN-CKD, 2024 WL 1344478, at *8 (E.D.
12 Cal. Mar. 29, 2024) (citation omitted); see also Oppenheimer v. Sw. Airlines Co., No. 13-CV-19 law.”).

20 Accordingly, the Court DENIES Defendants’ motion to dismiss Plaintiff’s prayer for 21 relief, seeking punitive damages.

22 IV. CONCLUSION

23 For the foregoing reasons, the Court DENIES Plaintiff’s Motion to Remand. (ECF No.
24 8.) The Court further GRANTS in part and DENIES in part Defendants’ Motion to Dismiss and 25 DISMISSES Plaintiff’s third cause of action against Singh and eighth cause of action against 26 Defendants without leave to amend, and DISMISSES Plaintiff’s sixth cause of action against 27 Defendants with leave to amend. (ECF No. 9.) In all other respects, the Court DENIES 28 Defendants’ Motion to Dismiss. (Id.)

1 Plaintiff may file an amended complaint not later than thirty (30) days after the electronic 2 filing date of this Order. Defendants shall file any responsive pleading not later than twenty-one 3 (21) days from the electronic filing date of Plaintiff's amended complaint.

4 If Plaintiff opts not to file an amended complaint, this action will proceed on Plaintiff's 5 first, second, third (excluding Singh), fourth, fifth, and seventh causes of action. Defendants shall 6 file an answer not later than twenty-one (21) days from Plaintiff's deadline to file an amended 7 complaint.
